

A HANDBOOK OF PRESENT-DAY ENGLISH

BY

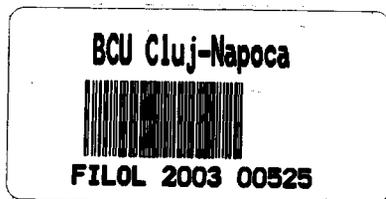

E. KRUISINGA

PART II

ENGLISH ACCIDENCE AND SYNTAX

3

FIFTH EDITION

P. NOORDHOFF — 1932 — GRONINGEN

CONTENTS

WORD-FORMATION

	Page
Composition	3—20.
Composition as a means of word-formation. Grammatical characteristics of Compounds: stress, meaning. Functions of compounds. Compound Nouns. Compound Verbs. Other parts of speech. Semi-Compounds. Distance- Compounds. Composition with Prefixes.
Derivation	21—61.
Prefixes. Suffixes: Verbs. Abstract and Collective Nouns. Personal Names. Diminutives. Ad- jectives. Ordinal Numbers. Adverbs. Composition and Derivation.
Comparison	62—95.
Forms	62—69.
The endings -er , -est	62—67.
Irregular Forms	67—69.
Use	69—85.
Comparative of Contrast. Comparative of Superiority. Comparative of Proportion. Com- parative of Graduation. Superlative of contrast and of superiority. Absolute Superlative. Converted Comparative and Superlative.

	Page
Irregular Forms of Comparison. Group-forms with more and most compared with the inflectional forms. The Character of the Suffixes of Comparison.
Conversion	96—161
Introductory	96— 98
Partial and complete conversion.
Adjectives as Nouns	98—117
To denote a class of Persons. As Neuter Nouns. As Adjuncts to Pronouns. Adjectives denoting a number of Persons, or Individuals. Used in the Genitive. Used with a Plural Ending. Adjectives denoting Languages, Nationality, Colours. Comparatives and Superlatives.
Adjectives as Verbs	117—118
Adjectives as Adverbs	119—120
Nouns as Verbs	120—124
Verbs as Nouns	124—126
Occasional Conversion.	126—132
Adverbs as Nouns. Attributive Adverbs. Adverbs as Conjunctions. Adverbs as Verbs. Prepositions as Conjunctions. Sentences as Nouns and as Verbs.
Conversion: Real and Apparent.	132—161
Conversion and Shortening. Attributive Nouns: Form of attributive noun. Relations in attributive groups. Geographical proper names. Names of materials. Names of points of the compass. Other nouns. Appositional Groups. Predicative use of Nouns. Attributive Groups of Nouns.

	Page
Attributive stem and Related Constructions.
Occasional Methods of Word-Formation	162—171
Shortening. Back-formation. Repetition. Portmanteau Words. Sentence-Condensation. Onomatopœia.
The English Vocabulary.	171—174
SYNTACTIC WORD-GROUPS AND SENTENCES
Syntactic Word-Groups.	177—261
Structure of Close Syntactic Groups	179—235
Verb Groups. Noun Groups Adjective Groups. Adverb Groups. Preposition Groups. Extended Groups.
Objects and Adverb Adjuncts. Indirect and Direct Object. Adjunct of Benefit. Oblique of Interest. Nouns of Inherent Possession.
Verbs with Object and Predicative Adjunct. Structure and Meaning. Passive and Intransitive. Groups with to have , to give , etc. Reflexive Verbs. Reflexive and Intransitive. Reciprocal and Intransitive Verbs. Verbs with Preposition Groups. Transitive and Intransitive. Causatives. Prepositional Objects to Nouns and Adjectives. Anaphoric To . Other Groups.
Concord in Close Groups	210—211
Word-Order in Close Groups.	211—235
Verb Groups. Noun Groups: Attributive Adjectives. Attributive Verbal Adjectives. Attributive Nouns. Attributive Pronouns. Numeral Adjectives. Attributive Adverbs. Adjective and Adverb Groups. Preposition Groups.

	Page
Structure of Loose Syntactic Groups	235—257
Terminology.
Double Linked Groups. And. Or. But.
Correlative Conjunction Groups.
Triple and Multiple Groups. And, Or, Nor, But.
Correlative Conjunction Groups.
Full-linking, End-linking, Pair-linking.
Broken and Continuous Linked Groups.
Unlinked Groups. Broken, Continuous.
Various Ways of Grouping.
Special Types of Loose Groups. Repetition-
Groups: linked; unlinked. Repetition-groups and Compounds. Repetition of common elements in groups.
Structure and Meaning of Loose Groups.
Loose Groups in form with a dominant member. Apparent loose groups.
Concord and Word-order in Loose
Groups.	257—260
Retrospect on the Syntactic Groups.	260—261
The Simple Sentence	262—360
Structure of Sentences with a Subject and a Predicate.	263—293
Subject. Formal Subject it . Introductory there .
Predicate. Verbal Sentences. Nominal
Sentences. Verbs of motion. Predicative Adverbs.
Predicative Adjuncts to the Object.
Free Adjuncts. Related Adjuncts. Absolutute Adjuncts. Unrelated Adjuncts. Unrelated Adjuncts and Prepositions and Conjunctions.
Structure and Meaning. Relations between subject and predicate. Verbal Sentences.
Nominal Sentences.
Sentences not Distinguishing Subject and Predicate.	293—300

Sentences without a Subject. Sentences without a Predicative Verb. Sentence-words. Interjections. Shortened Sentences.

Concord 300—317

Subject and Predicative Verb: Words in -s. Plural Titles of books. Nouns in -ics. Nouns of measure. Collective nouns. Nouns with of-adjuncts. Sentences with nominal predicates. Concord of it and that. There as a formal subject. Double Subjects. Subject and Nominal Predicate. Subject and other parts of the Sentence. Nouns and Attributive Adjuncts. Nouns and Referring Pronouns. Indefinite and Referring Pronouns.

Order of Words in the Simple Sentence. 317—360

Order of Subject and Verbal Predicate. Normal Order in declarative, interrogative, and exclamatory sentences. Inverted Order in interrogative and exclamatory sentences. Sentences with the introductory There. Imperative Sentences. Inversion in Sentences with an Object. Inversion in Declarative Sentences. In sentences with intransitive verbs. Inversion in optative sentences. Place of Objects: Objects of Compound Verbs. Adverb Adjuncts. Special Classes of Adverbs: Adverbs of Indefinite Time. Of Manner. Of Degree. Of modality. Sentence-Adverbs. Compound Verbs. Exceptional Wordorder. Predicative Adjuncts. Free Adjuncts.

	Page
Order of Words in Sentences of other Types.
The Compound Sentence	361—466
Definitions: Compound Sentence. Clauses. Main Clause. Sub-clause.
Structure	364—428
Subject clauses.
Object clauses. Clauses dependent upon adjectives and nouns. Subject Clauses and Object Clauses.
Predicate Clauses.
Apposition Clauses.
Attributive Clauses: Relations to their leading noun. Continuative and Restrictive. Clauses that are neither continuative nor restrictive. Attributive clauses and Relative clauses. Clauses with that . That and the Relative Pronouns. Unconnected attributive clauses. Character of the Unconnected Attributive Clauses.
Adverb Clauses: Classification according to meaning. Introductory words. Clauses of Time. Clauses of Place. Clauses of Cause. Of Condition. Of Comparison. Of Manner. Of Concession.
Continuative Adverb Clauses.
Connected and Unconnected Adverb Clauses.
Interwoven Clauses.
Concord	428—442
Concord of Person.
Concord of Tense. Indirect Style. Semi-indirect Style.
Order of Words	442—463
Order of Subject and Predicate in Sub-clauses. Inversion in Adverb Clauses. Order of Words in Adverb Clauses. In Relative

	Page
Clauses. Place of Conjunctions in Sub-Clauses.
Order of Clauses	463—466
Loose Sentence-Groups.	467—482
Conjunctive Groups: and, but, or, nor, neither. Adverbs.
Unlinked Groups. Mixed Groups. Broken and Continuous Groups. Double Subjects and Predicates. Correlatives. As and than .
Special Types of Sentence-Structure	483—496
Special Types of Sentences. Sentences opening with Not that .
Parenthetic sentences. Appended clauses. Sentences with an appended subject. Both subjects pronouns. An appended ing as a subject. Appended subjects without a break. Provisional it . Appended objects. Subjects repeated by a personal pronoun. Direct Style. Continuative Clauses.
Form and Function of Sentences.	497—515
Apparent Simple Sentences. Apparent Compound Sentences. Introductory It is . Apparent Coordination. Apparent Subordinate Clauses.
Meaning of Sentences	516—541
Declarative Sentences. Interrogative. Exclamatory. Optative. Imperative.
Dependent Statements, Desires, Questions, Exclamations.
Modality. Negation. Emphasis. Questions and Answers. Comparison. Number. Time. Logical and Formal Syntax.
Epilogue	542—544
Index	545—550